for Autism Services on Staten Island

Resource Guide

What YOU Can Do...

- Be well informed about your child and his or her needs. There are many resources in this guide that are available to help.
- Don't wait if you have concerns. Contact any of the agencies listed inside.
- Know your child's rights.
- Reach out to your legislators and let them know how important services are for your child or yourself.
- Help raise autism awareness. The more we can educate our community, the easier it will be for our children.
- Find out where your elected officials stand on issues relating to autism. Don't forget to vote.
- Stay involved. This is only the beginning of the journey to make sure children and adults with autism get the services and support they need.

A Message from Staten Island Borough President

James P. Molinaro

I am pleased to provide Staten Island's autism community with this updated resource guide. With your valuable input, we have revised and reformatted the booklet to make it more user-friendly. In 2010, the Borough President's Committee on Autism, comprised of Staten Island's autism service providers, worked together to compile our community's first-ever comprehensive resource guide to help parents take action after their child has been diagnosed with an Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD). This handy booklet provides detailed contact information for autism organizations on Staten Island that offer services to both children and adults. Finding the right place for autism treatment and services can be a difficult process, but we hope that this newly updated guide will help make that journey easier.

Autism Spectrum Disorders are the fastest-growing developmental disability in America today. While parents of children with an ASD often learn early on what kind of treatment and services are needed, it can be difficult to gain access to them. It is crucial that effective services, treatment, and education for children and adults with ASD are accessed as quickly as possible. The earlier they receive appropriate services, the better the prognosis.

A diagnosis of an ASD presents real challenges for parents and caregivers. While the medical community seeks to find answers to the causes of ASDs, we have an obligation to help those living with it. I hope that you will find this guide useful, and I urge you to become active in the Staten Island autism community. We need the help of parents, grandparents, doctors, educators, and friends to continue to build the support and assistance needed to improve the lives of loved ones with Autism Spectrum Disorders.

James P. Molinaro

I have the RIGHT...

to go to my neighborhood school,

to work in my community,

to go out on a Friday night,

to live where I choose,

to be a productive member of
my community,

to go to college,

to be involved in all decisions
affecting my future,

to be respected,

for you to understand
and embrace my abilities,

to a good quality of life.

I have the same RIGHTS as you.

WE have the RIGHT to be heard.

Facts About Autism

- Autism affects 1 in every 88 children.
- Autism affects 1 in every 54 boys born today.
- More children will be born this year with autism than AIDS, diabetes and cancer combined.
- Autism costs this country more than $35 billion per year.
- There is no known medical detection or cure for Autism.
- Research indicates that early detection and intervention is essential for best outcomes.

Early Signs

- Baby's failure to turn towards source of sound or be interested in looking at faces.
- A failure to coo or babble when pleased.
- Failure to respond to name.
- Failure to socially orient to others. (e.g., turn and look when someone enters a room)
- Delay in the development of speech & language.
- Failure to participate in typical reciprocal activities. (e.g. peek-a-boo)

Diagnosis

As the autism epidemic has grown, parents know there are "warning signs" they should look for in their child. But how do you know if your child truly has autism, rather than just an unexplained delay? If you think your child may have an autism spectrum disorder (ASD), it is important to receive a diagnosis from a licensed professional which may include a developmental pediatrician, child psychologist, child psychiatrist or a pediatric neurologist. Your family pediatrician can recommend a pediatric neurologist, or you can contact one of the licensed doctors below.

Early Intervention Programs

If your child has an autism spectrum disorder (ASD), it is important to stay positive and take action. While there is no cure for autism, many times the symptoms can be reduced through Early Intervention Programs. By addressing your child's needs early, you can reduce their need for services throughout their lifetime. Early Intervention gives your child the best possible future.

State Approved Evaluation Sites ^{3-5 years old}

Like all children, children with autism spectrum disorders (ASD) have the right to quality education. But, unlike their peers, many children with ASDs need specialized programs and assistance in the classroom. To receive this help, your child will need a State Approved Evaluation. Your child will then receive an Individualized Education Plan (IEP), which highlights what kind of assistance is needed.

NYC DOE Community School Programs in Public Schools

ASD Nest Program:

Nestled within supportive neighborhood schools, using an integrated co-teaching approach, the ASD Nest Program helps higher functioning children with autism spectrum disorders (ASDs) improve academic, social, and behavior function in school and in their communities.

The program includes two elementary schools, P.S. 4 and P.S. 69 and one middle school, I.S. 75.

ASD Small Class Program:

Elementary schools P.S. 60 and P.S. 69 have a small class program for students with autism who require more intensive educational supports. In addition to a structured learning environment, in-class occupational and speech therapy when appropriate, is a vital component of this program.

In September 2012, middle school I.S. 72 will open a small class program following the elementary school model.

Staten Island Schools with Support

I.S. 24:

The Transitional Asperger Program (TAP) at I.S. 24 is designed to meet the needs of students in grades 6-8 with targeted instructional and social support who can achieve success within the general education environment. Students are provided with organizational support and opportunities to participate in after school activities to practice their social skills.

New Dorp High School:

New Dorp High School has a program for high functioning ASD students in grades 9-12. The school is divided into small learning communities and the students select which academy they wish to attend. There is a teacher who serves a dual role as the Special Education Services and Supports provider and also as the teacher in the "Center". The Center is a place for the ASD students to go for academic and social situation assistance. A trained social worker and speech therapist work with the students on IEP goals, socialization and activities of everyday life. The students travel to classes in general education as well as special education settings, based on their various academic needs and IEP. A paraprofessional is present in each class. Opportunities for socialization are developed and joining school clubs, teams, and attendance at events is encouraged.

Prospective students are given ample opportunity to acquaint themselves with the school and its expectations. Visits are arranged throughout the 8th grade year, and students are able to meet and become comfortable with teachers, support staff, and other students in the TAP Program. From the intake process through each child's high school career, focus is placed on increasing independence in preparation for college and the world of work.

Program staff regularly assesses students' progress and needs, encouraging autonomy while providing needed support. TAP students meet daily with the Program Coordinator and participate in regular Social Skills and Counseling Groups. They attend classes with mainstream students and are encouraged to get involved in extra-curricular activities in the school.

for ASD Students

Tottenville High School:

Tottenville High School provides a wealth of academic and social supports for ASD students, grades 9 through 12. Students receive academic instruction as per their IEP mandate in a variety of general education (including honors classes and integrated co-teaching) and special education (special class 15:1 and 12:1:1) settings. All related and support services (counseling, speech, vision, hearing, occupation and physical therapy) are provided based on the student's IEP Plan.

Tottenville High School offers elective credit for transition classes which focus on relevant career, home and job ready skills that students need to master in order to be independent members of their community. Students learn how to budget for grocery shopping, review basic parenting skills, explore career options and learn to research solutions to every day issues. Guest speakers visit classes and students have the opportunity to participate in out of school trips.

The school offers a daily morning Breakfast Club with special focus on healthy nutrition and the development of social skills. Students make new friends and begin the day with the support of school staff. Each afternoon student's have access to all school clubs and teams, as well as an after-school club specifically designed to improve student's social interaction with their peers. For example, on Mondays students prepare a variety of snacks and meals. On Fridays they participate in a game room with a variety of games and other activities. Students often form valuable friendships that continue outside of school.

This year the school formalized a peer mentoring program by including general education students in both our morning and afternoon program activities. An alternate lunchroom program also takes place during each lunch period for students who would prefer to eat lunch in a smaller social setting. School staff supervise and encourage appropriate social behaviors in this setting.

Select students are also invited to participate in a twelve month program geared to improving basic social skills and transition goals.

Our goal is to work with parents to assist our students in gaining the academic and social skills they need to flourish in our community.

NYC DOE District 75

District 75 instructs students with autism in classes throughout New York City. Their mission is to ensure instructional practices that reflect the individual needs of these students including those with diverse cultural and linguistic backgrounds.

Based on assessment, instruction is focused on the behavior and communication needs of students, giving special attention to the incorporation of recognized techniques, strategies, and methodologies.

Professional development is a key component of their programming and they offer instruction to staff in the application of methodologies such as Treatment and Education of Autistic and Other Communicatively Handicapped Children (TEACCH), Picture Exchange Communication Systems (PECS), Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA), Discrete Trial Training (DTT), and Natural Environment Training (NET).

Collaboration with major universities and recognized specialists in the field of autism helps teachers and other school-based staff learn and benefit from proven methods of instruction and therapeutic intervention.

Students are provided with all related services that are needed to support them and help them access instruction. DOE programs serve those from 3 years to 21 years of age. Preschool students are instructed in a classroom ratio of 8:1:2, and school age students in a ratio of 6:1:1. All students with ASD have options for participation, when appropriate, in inclusion programs as well as movement to a less restrictive environment.

Residential Services

Adults with ASDs have many housing options that fit with their specific needs. There are group homes with trained staff available 24-hours a day, and there is more independent housing where an assistant helps as little or as much as needed. To learn more about Residential Services and available housing options, contact the organizations below.

Support Groups & Agencies

There is no reason to feel alone as the parent or sibling of a child with an ASD. Throughout Staten Island, there are Support Groups where you can talk about your experiences and concerns with other parents and experts. Joining one of these groups will introduce you to others who are facing the same issues.
